Discussion Question Worksheet

Twelve open questions with no single right answer, with room to write. Adjust the wording to the age of the group. Suitable for ages 7 and up; for younger children, ask the questions aloud and scribe the answers.

Name: _____ Date: _____

About the story

What is Pango's armor good for, and what is it useless against?

Who helps Pango, and what does each one give up in order to help?

Was Pango helped because Pango was useful, or for another reason? Does the difference matter?

What would have happened if nobody had noticed Pango at all?

About real pangolins

Pangolin scales are keratin, like fingernails. Why does that fact matter to people who buy them?

Pangolins eat ants and termites. What might change in a place where pangolins disappear?

Why is an animal that rolls into a ball easy for a person to pick up?

Which is harder to fix: hunting an animal, or removing the place it lives?

About us

What does it mean to be a "big friend" to something that cannot thank you?

Name one creature you have never thought about that lives near you.

What is one thing you could keep doing every month, not just once?

Why is telling someone else a true fact a form of help?

One thing I will do

Write one action, who will do it with you, and the date you will check back.

Pango is an illustrated character created for this project, not a wildlife photograph. Every factual statement here comes from the canonical, sourced species records on endangeredspecies.humanity-project.org/species. Free to copy and print for classroom, church, youth-group, and family use.